JUDGE R. G. WILLIAMS

Who will leave next Monday for Covington to locate for the practice of his profession-law. It is with much regret that Judge Williams leaves Rockcastle and the many warm friends, which he has here, but desiring to enter a better field for business, has decided to cast his lot with the people of the Kenton county metropolis. In his loss, Rockcastle loses one of its brainiest young men and one of its most enterprising citizens. There is not a man in the county who has worked harder or done more for the up building of the county than he, and always showed his earnestness by liberal donations, and while county Judge, did every thing in his power to improve the county, morally, intellectually and commercially, working all the time for the interest of his people and not for a personal gain. His principal ambition while Judge, was to improve the county roads and this he did to a considerable extent. The influence wielded for good has been no little bit, and his efforts are thoroughly appreciated. May success join him in his new field, is the sincere wish of his many Rockcastle friends.
